Student Government Meeting.

A meeting of the Student Government Association was held in College Hall Chapel on Thursday, May 28, at 5 P.M., the President in the chair. Miss Pendleton spoke of the recent violation of Student Government rules by the two Freshmen, who have been lately suspended. She emphasized the fact that cases of conduct of this kind jeopardized not only the reputation of the girls themselves, but of the whole college. Miss Pendleton then explained how glad the Academic Council was to show their confidence in the decision of the Student Government Executive Board by their enforcement of the recommendation to suspend these students made by that board. The Dean went on to speak particularly of the responsibility which each girl bears to make the repetition of such an occurrence impossible. In conclusion, she congratulated the Student Government Association on an Executive Board in whose decisions the students and the Academic Council could rely so confidently.

The Secretary then read the report of the Executive Board and the Secretary of the Committee of House Presidents read the report of that committee. Miss Cooper, chairman of the committee, recommended that the various sections of the Rules and Regulations receive, for greater convenience in referring to them, separate headings.

Miss West, reporting from the Faculty-Student Conference, said that the students from this committee had decided that the social duties of the college were too unevenly distributed for the welfare of the intellectual life of Wellesley, and that various rearrangements of the social schedule seemed, for this reason, advisable.

Miss Tyler then reported the work of the Fire Brigade. She told how necessary it was for the fire drill to be conducted quietly, so that in case of a real fire the directions of the captain could be heard. Miss E. Louise Smith was elected captain of the Brigade for 1908-1909.

Miss Cummings spoke in favor of having a "Head of singing" for the college. Miss Spahr moved that a girl be appointed to this office.

Miss Baird spoke of the necessity for keeping Student Government rules in force over Memorial Day and during Commencement, and read a letter of greeting from Miss Hazard.

The Secretary then read a letter from Miss Hill, thanking the students for their appreciation and support.

Miss Baird then introduced a discussion of the possibility of having a students' building. Miss Cummings spoke of the inadequacy of the Barn and the Barn swallows to meet the social needs of the college, and of the real need for some place where all of us could go, at any time.

Miss Fuller then spoke of the ideal students' building and of the convenience and pleasure which it would bring to casts, to audiences, and to others, of the use it would be in providing offices for all the college organizations, and of the added unity and democracy it would bring to the college.

Miss Little then spoke of the important part which such buildings were playing in other colleges, in binding together all their members.

Miss Carpenter spoke of the advantages which a students' building would bring especially to the Freshman class.

Miss Rawn then suggested means for obtaining the building, by support both from Alumnæ and from undergraduates.

It was voted to petition the Trustees for permission to start a fund for a students' building. The meeting was then adjourned.

Christian Association Meeting.

A regular business meeting of the Christian Association of Wellesley College was held in College Hall Chapel, May 28.

The first business of the meeting was the report of the committee for the General Secretary. Miss Severin, as chairman, gave the report. As Miss Knapp, who has served as general secretary this past year, is unable to come back next year, the committee has secured, as her successor, Miss Jane Button, Wellesley, 1902.

The next business of the meeting was the election of delegates for Silver Bay—which resulted as follows: Miss Hinchliff, '10, Miss Martha Irwin, '11, Miss Elizabeth Robinson, '11.

Miss Young, chairman of the Religious Meeting Committee, gave a report of the work of her committee. This committee arranges for the Thursday-evening meeting of the Association, all but six of which have been lead by members of the college, three have been business meetings. The first prayer-meetings of the Freshman class were also arranged by the Religious Meetings Committee.

Miss Hathaway, chairman of the Missionary Committee, gave a report of the work of her committee. They have arranged for the speakers at missionary vespers and have had charge of the money [illegible] for [illegible]

EDITORIAL.

To-day, the general topic of complaint among us is the sudden and untraceable disappearance of some valuable or favorite article from our rooms. It has long ceased to be merely surprising and annoying to miss little things. It is now a serious matter to have larger, more valuable possessions slip away unknowingly, and instead of always complaining and talking in this futile way, I think we should be much more careful in taking care of our things. If we leave eight dollars on our desks with the door open, we should hold ourselves greatly at fault when the money is gone.

But there is another failing much more common, much more to be blamed, but one degree removed from actual theft, and that is the eternal, annoying borrowing. Oh, it is well enough to laugh about it and quote from one of Wellesley's songs, "How many friends' good-looking clothes could she get in her suit-case?"

But when you go into room after room and see such signs as: "Will whoever took Pride and Prejudice leave her name on my desk;" or "Will the girls who took these books please return them," and then follows a list of six or eight books,—when you see these things I think it is time to draw the line.

Daily you miss fountain-pens, note-paper, your favorite vase, the contents of your work-bag; every week you find your handkerchief supply growing smaller and have to run around for the shirt-waist or newly pressed skirt you lent to a girl going to town. It doesn't make the misfortune any less to feel that only girls you know, only friends of yours would thus help themselves to your things. It is really much worse to have your friends take your things without asking and not return them, than to have mere acquaintances or people you do not know at all, do it.

Let every girl have her own things; and above all let every girl buy and keep her own books and not rob her friends of books that they know and love.

May a suggestion be offered in regard to Tree Day? The effectiveness of the dancing depends a great deal upon the harmony of the background, and much is detracted from the atmosphere and impressiveness when there is any noise or movement on the campus near the dancing, particularly when it is in back of it. Last year at Tree Day there were wagons and automobiles waiting on the road in the back of the dancing. The audience could get accustomed perhaps to that anachronism as long as the vehicles were quiet, but unfortunately after the dancing had begun and the attention of all was fixed upon the rhythm and color of the dance, the wagons and automobiles discovered that they were part of the background and decided to move out. And as wagons and automobiles do not move as silently as the dancers, they drew the attention of the audience to themselves, and the joy of the revellers was forgotten by the spectators who were anxiously hoping that the wagons would soon be out of the way and quiet. People passing on the board walk are distracting, although they do not gain as much attention. But in the midst of the wooing of Endymion, a maid crossing the board walk and perhaps laughing or calling to someone else, can make a modern Wellesley student out of a moon Goddess. Is it possible then to forbid all crossing of the space in back of the dancing shortly before the dancing begins, so that there will surely be no distraction, and the spectator may relax to pure unalloyed enjoyment of the beauty?

COLLEGE NOTES.

Edith H. Morrill, 1908, has received from the faculty of Cornell University an appointment as Sage scholar in philosophy for 1908-'09.

Carolyn Wilson, 1910, has been appointed custodian of the Barn for 1908-'09, and Esther Randall, assistant custodian.

Miss Gamble entertained students of the advanced psychology laboratory courses at a psychology picnic on Wednesday, May 27.

The Magazine Board has raised its prize offers from $10 and $5 to $15 and $10.

The work of students of the Art Department for the past year is now on exhibition in the Farnsworth Art Building. The exhibition is very much larger than those of previous years. To accommodate the work the big lecture room and the balcony on the second floor have been used, as well as the gallery. Of especial interest is the new work which has been taken up in some of the courses. The crayon sketches from life and the studies in composition which have been done by the students of Art 16 are remarkably good. Large rendered drawings like those made in the advanced architecture course for this year have never been attempted before, and the supplementary work in color and tone for the course in Italian painting is also new. The latter experiment has proved particularly successful because of Mr. Comins' copies in color of Italian masters which the department has had during the year. All the work is of a very high grade, that of the first and second years as well as of the more advanced courses.

On Saturday, May 23, the Department of English Literature gave a tea for Mrs. William H. Brainerd, her little son, Master Henry Bowen Brainerd, and Miss Bowen, at the Shakespeare House. Mrs. Brainerd was formerly an instructor in the department.

The words of the 1910 crew song were written by the class president, Miss Dorothy Richardson.

On Thursday evening, May 28, the Class of 1908 gave a reception in the Barn for the Juniors.

The election of the Deutscher Verein officers for 1908-'09 will be held Thursday, June 4. (Elevator table.)

The original songs which have been composed by students of Music I will be sung at a department recital sometime next week.

LECTURE ON DARWIN.

On Thursday afternoon, May 28, Doctor Wilcox gave a lecture on Darwin to the members of Zoology I. The boy Darwin, as we gather from his autobiography, was vigorous and eager as any normal English boy, already showing his later inclinations by collecting flowers and stamps and stones. He was such a poor student at Shrewsbury that his father withdrew him when he was sixteen, to make him a doctor. But Darwin's distaste for his course was strong, and his father decided next upon the clergy as a fitting career for his son, and entered him at Christ College in Cambridge. The work there was quite as uninteresting to him but he became intimate with Henslow who was lecturing on botany and who advised him to apply for the position of zoologist on board of the surveying boat "Beagle," which was about to start on a voyage around the world.

In December, 1831, he sailed on the significant voyage, attempting to work on the unsteady sailing vessel, in spite of frequent seasickness, and cramped quarters. He left the boat and travelled by land to Buenos Ayres finding in the alluvial land many large specimens of fossils which were similar to the animals living there. At the Galapagos Islands he noticed that each separate island had its own species of thrush, or of turtle. When the boat sailed southwest to Australia he investigated the coral islands, and formulated his theory in regard to their formation.

Reaching home in 1836 he worked on an account of his voyage which was published in 1839 in the "Voyage of the Beagle," and gained popularity. In spite of his illness which forced him to leave London, and to lead a quiet life, unable to work more than three or four hours a day, he began his life work, which was suggested to him by his observation that organisms which are extinct resemble those still alive, and that isolated specimens—as on islands—resemble others around.

The theory of evolution had been a scientific poetry ever since the time of the Greeks, but no one could understand how evolution could come. Darwin set to work to solve this problem. Before his voyage he had held the opinion of all other scientists—that the present fossils—the animals of the past—had been completely destroyed by some general devastation, as a flood, and that the present animals were descended from types exactly like themselves, which had been originally made so by the Creator. Darwin went to work by setting down everything which might possibly bear on the subject, without attempting to formulate a theory, until in 1838, he read Malthus' theory of population. He applied it to the animals, deciding that if the animals also increased in greater proportion than their food, the weaker animals must drop out of the struggle for existence, while the animal peculiarly adapted for getting its food would be able to live and propogate its qualities in its descendants. In 1842 Darwin wrote a forty-page article which he later developed to two hundred pages on this theory. But before he had decidedly proclaimed it, he received a letter from Alfred Wallace in which Wallace stated the same theory upon which Darwin had been working—the origin of species—and proposed to publish it. Darwin strugged between a desire for priority and a desire to yield it to Wallace. Finally he decided to have both papers read at a meeting of the Science Club, in 1858. The audience was awed but hardly dared accept them. Darwin then wrote his "Origin of Species" as a mere outline of his views. Indignation poured upon him from all sides but as the fight continued, he gained, until at his death in 1882 he was not the most hated, but the most loved man in England.

Miss Willcox describes him personally as a rather tall man, large, slightly stooping, with heavy features, a rather florid face, long white beard and hair, and keen eyes. Yet he was characterized by exquisite gentleness and deference of manner, and a modesty which expressed his abilities thus.

"Yes, I have the power of sticking to a thing. It's the only power I have."

DR. DENISON'S LECTURE.

Dr. Denison gave the last of his series of lectures on the Social Significance of the teachings of Christ, on Thursday evening, after the business meeting of the Christian Association. He began by asking Miss Doe for her report on "The Eye of the Needle"—a satire upon our social system by William Dean Howells; and Miss Pratt for her report on Dr. Van Eden's paper upon "Practical Communism."

Dr. Denison then went on with a discussion of our relationship to the poorer classes. The attitude of Jesus, toward the poor, he said, was one of sympathy. Christ himself said that He was poor, preached the gospel to poor people, and censured those who were indifferent to the wrongs of the poor. We ourselves may assume one of three attitudes toward the poorer classes and it lies with us which of them it is to be. In the first place there is the old-fashioned idea of charity, the kind of charity represented in the great Thanksgiving dinners given to the poor, where the poor sit below eating while the rich sit up in a gallery to watch them, all the while enjoying a smug satisfaction in their own generosity. In this kind of charity there is danger to both the donors and the recipients; to the donors because it is selfish and self seeking and to the recipients because it becomes in time degrading.

The second attitude we may assume is the philanthropic attitude. Philanthropy, said Dr. Denison, is a kind of classified charity whose general rule is to help the worthy, to advise the ignorant, to refuse the vicious and to punish frauds. But in trying to follow out this rule we run into all sorts of difficulties, the worthy are the very people who do not want help, it is almost impossible to advise the ignorant when we ourselves cannot realize the great disadvantages under which they labour; great power of discernment is necessary to know who the really vicious are; and it is difficult to punish frauds when we know not what extenuating circumstances have driven them to knavery.

Jesus taught the attitude of sympathy and it is this attitude that Dr. Denison holds up as ideal. Suspicion only serves to harden a man, but a feeling of fellowship will move him—"Treat every man, as if he were Jesus Christ himself in disguise," finished Dr. Denison, "and you will bring out the best that is in him."

PARLIAMENT OF FOOLS.

Dramaties on the Green, my dear,
Dramatics in the air!
You can't escape it,
You can't shape it,
So there's room to spare
For solitude with all around
Dramaties in the air.

You take a walk by Tupelo—
Dramaties in the air!
The maidens falling to the ground
In natty gym suits all around
With pathos very rare.
They fill your heart with pity—these
Dramaties in the air.

Dramaties on the green, my dear,
Dramatics in the air,
You cannot find a safe retreat,
Some hero springs up to his feet,
With ribbons in his hair.
Dramatics in the air, my dear,
Dramatics in the air.

If upper-class girls—girls who [illegible] speak lightly of the every-day [illegible] of Student Government, how can we expect the average Freshman [illegible] fidelity to the Association which she can [illegible] know through the remarks of such girls. How [illegible] whom the responsibility and the privilege [illegible] ideals of Student Government [illegible] that the easiest way to keep out of Rad[illegible] to register at all—or that the easiest [illegible] slips together when you come to it—" [illegible] being called up."

If we defend ourselves by saying that we [illegible] the Freshman may well say 'how can we [illegible] you mean anything when you speak well of Student Government?"

Just as long as each one of us fails [illegible] which she must feel to the regulations as well [illegible] Student Government, just so long must we expect the Freshman to fail to appreciate that loyalty. No upperclass girl has any right to be ignorant of the rules; every upperclass girl should be heartily ashamed to say anything which might [illegible] titude of those who must themselves [illegible] opinion.

We all heard the motion which was passed in Student Government meeting concerning a head of cheering for the Harvard-at-large. The purpose is, of course, to make the cheering better and more of a feature here at college than it now is. May I make a suggestion? One reason why we fail to get the snap and sweetness may be due to the fact that we put too much amount of energy into our cheering and for that reason deceive severe injury from it. This cheering is never beautiful as compared with musical cheers—is never effective as compared with men's cheering, of which it is a [illegible] exceedingly commonplace, when we consider the [illegible] every college expresses its feelings [illegible] With [illegible] with the cheering entirely, and put all our energy into [illegible] and practising beautiful and melodious songs.

Our "Tra-la-la-la" is unique and effective. Why [illegible] have more and equally charming cheers along [illegible]

ALUMNÆ NOTES.

In addition to notes concerning graduates, the Alumnæ Column will contain items of interest about members of the Faculty, past and present, and former students.

Frances Hall Rousmaniere, B. A. 1900, and M. A. 1904, Ph.D. Radcliffe, 1906, has been appointed instructor in philosophy at Smith College.

Mabel B. Woodbury, B. A. 1892, M. A. 1904, instructor in Latin in the High School of Redlands, California, has prepared a suggestive "Outline of a Course in Greek and Roman Literature." It includes outlines of twelve lectures, topics for class study and for special report, and a bibliography which names books in the Redlands libraries. The outline and the course on which it is based must prove of real value.

The Open Court Publishing Company will bring out, within a few months, an edition of Arthur Collier's "Clavis Universalis," edited with Introductions and Notes by Ethel Bowman, B. A. 1900, M. A. 1907. The thesis presented by Miss Bowman, last June, in candidacy for the master's degree, was a study of the "Clavis Universalis."

At the May meeting of the Boston Society of Natural History, Miss Emmeline Moore, M. A., Wellesley 1906, was awarded the second prize in the Walker competition, for a paper based on "A Study of Winter Buds with Reference to Their Growth and Leaf Content." This paper was a copy of the thesis presented to Wellesley College in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Arts. Under the conditions of the Walker gift a first prize of $100 and a second prize of $50 is to be awarded annually, for the best papers based on original research in the subjects of botany, geology and zoology. In case no worthy papers are presented the prizes are not awarded.

Miss Cora L. Benter, 1904, will spend a part of the summer teaching mathematics at the summer session of the Wisconsin State Normal at Oshkosh.

Miss Genevieve Stuart, 1891, who has been abroad since last August, spent a few days in Wellesley last week. She has accepted a position for next year at Kemper Hall, Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Miss Gladys Tuttle, 1907, writes from Paris that owing to some changes of plan, her return to this country may be put off until August.

Miss Helen Manatt, 1903, who is teaching in the High School of Montclair, New Jersey, is to be one of the councilors this summer at Camp Aloha, Fairlee, Vermont. Mrs. Harriet Farnsworth Gulick, 1887, writes that the camp, which has been very successful in the past, is to be larger than ever this year. The campus will enjoy the good-fellowship of Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles of Boston, Wellesley School of Music, 1886, who will be in the neighborhood of the camp a large part of the summer.

Mrs. Anna M. McCoy, secretary of the college, 1882-'86, is spending a few days at 50 Chelmsford street, Lowell, Massachusetts.

Owing to some mistake, the last Alumnæ Register did not record the following above its class list of 1900: "Hannah Hume Lee, President (living in India); Alice E. Chase, Vice-president (Acting President), Alice T. Rowe, Secretary.

Mrs. John S. Chandler (Henrietta S. Randall, 1886) who has been for some time in this country, has returned to her work in Madura, India. She wrote from the Mongolia, of the Pacific Mail Steamship Co., just as they were nearing the coast of Japan. On the way across from Oakland, California, they stopped in Hawaii long enough to visit the Punahue College, "beautiful for situation." She says, "The site was given to one of the early missionaries by a Hawaiian princess. He deeded it over for Christian education and the result is this fine school of five hundred pupils, from the kindergarten up through the first college year."

Miss Mary Lucia Hamblet, 1898, is studying medicine at Cornell, and has one more year of work before her for the degree. Her present address is 123 West twenty-first street, New York City.

The annual business meeting of the Boston Wellesley College Club is to be held at Wellesley, College Hall Chapel, on Saturday, June 13th, 1908, at 2.30 P.M.

Will all members of 1901, who plan to be at Wellesley during the Commencement season, notify Leila Day Stevens, Wellesley Hills, by June 10? Please pass this notice on to others whom it may not reach. Watch the NEWS for further announcements, and after arrival at college, see the bulletins.
